1 Corinthians 15:51

“Behold, I tell you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed....”

Change is always occurring in a believer’s life, especially after they have been on the journey for a while. And a lot of times going through change can be uncomfortable. That’s probably why so many don’t like change. But is it inconvenience that is not liked or just fear of what we might personally lose out of the deal. Even so, we shouldn’t pull tight on life in our attempt to avoid change. When we do, we become resistant to the life that Christ wants from us as believers.

I have learned over the years of venturing through change that a lot of times it is not as uncomfortable as I had expected. I am sure the reason is Christ being with me through the ordeals. But I also have learned that change has stretched me into who I am today. Remember, when a believer surrenders to the Holy Spirit’s work in their lives, something supernatural occurs helping them to be overcomers.

As we know from Scripture, God never changes, but change keeps believers spiritually maturing more into His likeness. His promises and blessings that are given to us as we push through those uncomfortable times of life brings refreshing encouragement. So, my prayer for you is when a change heads your way, and trusting God is required, accept them, and take them on for God’s glory.
